What is LYTE at The Palace?

LYTE (London Youth Theatre Education) at The Palace is designed to introduce youth to the magic of theatre, offering them an opportunity to expand their creativity while cultivating self-esteem and performance skills in a stimulating, enjoyable environment. These social and creative skills will help them as they move forward in life.

What does LYTE offer?

Students have the opportunity to "break out of their shells"- both socially and imaginatively.

The participants undertake new and exciting challenges in a safe and fun setting.

Students will work on a variety of projects that include drama, music and movement, line memorization and vocal techniques as well as prop production.

Registration

The Summer program is offered in three sessions to youth 7-16 years of age. Each two week session ends with a public performance for family and friends at the Palace Theatre.

Enrollment is not guaranteed upon application submission. Youth will be accepted into the program based on their participation during an interview process.

The interview consists of one short play reading as well as general questions as asked by the Director and the LYTE staff.

Registration Fee: $75

Please contact office for more registration details.
